

THAW TRIAL NEARS ITS END

CASE MAY GO TO THE JURY BY THURSDAY NIGHT.

Certainly on Friday, says Justice Dowling. Thaw's will and the Hummel affidavit read by Mutual Consent—Littleton to Take Most of Today's Summing Up.

The jury which is to decide whether or not Harry K. Thaw was guilty of the murder of Stanford White heard yesterday afternoon the last of the evidence on that score. Thaw's counsel, Martin W. Littleton, will sum up to-day. District Attorney Jerome will make his final address to the jury on Thursday. It is possible that Justice Dowling may charge the jury on Thursday night.

No experts were called by Mr. Jerome in rebuttal. Evidently Mr. Jerome is going to let the jury decide on Thaw's sanity. About nine witnesses were produced by Mr. Jerome to show that when Thaw killed White he was rational.

The testimony of Hummel at the last trial was read by Mr. Jerome with the consent of Mr. Littleton. This was done after Mr. Jerome had consented to the reading of the will made by Thaw when he married Evelyn Nesbit. The compromise disposed of the trip to Blackwell's Island to take Hummel's testimony.

WITNESSES OF THE SHOOTING.

There were not many persons in the court room when the morning session opened. The first witness called by Mr. Jerome in rebuttal was Richard T. Lingler, who is now in the real estate business and who was on the Madison Square roof garden with his wife on the night that White was killed. He said he saw a flash and then heard two shots. He looked around and saw Thaw very distinctly.

"There was a perceptible length of time before Thaw moved away," said the witness. "He held up his revolver. I didn't hear him say anything, but I saw him move in the crowd toward the elevator."

"Did his acts and appearance impress you as rational or irrational?" asked Assistant District Attorney Garvan.

"No questions," said Mr. Littleton.

The next witness was Meyer Cohen, manager for Charles K. Harris, the music publisher. He said he saw Thaw on the night that he and a friend, Henry F. Debes, had seats and Thaw stood in front of them for a time. He saw Thaw after the shooting and said Thaw looked rational.

Cohen told Mr. Littleton that he had served on a jury after the last trial. Then Mr. Littleton asked him this question: "Did you tell two of the jurors at that trial that on that night Thaw was the craziest man you ever saw?"

"No, sir," said Cohen most emphatically.

Paul Brudi, the fireman who took the pistol from Thaw, said that he turned him over to Walter Paxton, an employee of the roof garden, saying: "Search him and see that he does no harm to anybody else or to himself."

"And you said that to Paxton?" said Mr. Littleton.

"I did," said the fireman.

"That's all," said Mr. Littleton.

Mr. Garvan was rubbing the witnesses and Mr. Littleton showed no desire to stand and make a speech. Paxton was called to the stand and he said that he heard the shooting after somebody on the stage had made a remark about challenging somebody else to a duel.

"It was so quick," he said, "I thought it was on the stage."

RATIONAL, WITNESSES SAY.

He thought Thaw was rational that night and so did Policeman Anthony L. Debes, who had Thaw in charge before he had been taken down the elevator after the shooting. Debes asked Thaw if he had shot Stanford White and he said he had. Thaw asked if White was dead and Debes said he did not know. "Thaw said," according to Debes, "he ruined my wife or life. I do not know what word he used, meaning White."

Debes said that Thaw was rational and Policeman Dennis Wright to whom Debes turned over Thaw to take him to the Tenderloin station said the same thing. Wright said he did not know why Thaw had been arrested and he asked him about it. Thaw said he would tell the captain when he got to the station.

"There are too many people around," said Thaw. "Take me around to the station as fast as you can."

A cab came along and Thaw wanted to take it, but Wright said he would have to walk.

When he was arraigned in the station, Sgt. David McCarthy said that Thaw said he was John Smith, 33 years old, and that he was a student, living at 18 Lafayette square, Washington. Thaw said he didn't care to say anything about the shooting, and when he was searched they found a pistol case on him. McCarthy said Thaw acted in a rational manner.

Then Mr. Jerome called Dr. McGuire, the Tomb physician. He said he had made an examination of Thaw and had found him sane for him since he had been in the Tomb. He was asked by Mr. Jerome to describe Thaw's actions and manner, whereupon Mr. Littleton objected on the ground that the relations between Thaw and Dr. McGuire were those of physician and patient. Mr. Jerome made a little speech in which he said he only wanted to bring out the truth, in view of the fact that the defense was insane, but Justice Dowling said that Dr. McGuire could not testify and he was excused.

THE HUMMEL AFFIDAVIT.

Mr. Jerome then began to make the foundation for the admission of the affidavit of Hummel. Evelyn Nesbit made the affidavit in the office of Mr. Jerome's attorney, Mr. Jerome called to the stand Abraham Snyderker, who was a notary in Hummel's office. He said he was long acquainted with Mrs. White and that he was the man to whom Evelyn Nesbit Thaw testified that she gave a $10,000 pearl ornament which was the property of her husband, Mr. Thaw. Snyderker said that he was the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and has come into the line of duty recently by receiving a letter with a check for $10,000 from the Smithsonian Institution of Pennsylvania and is an astronomer.

"The defense rests," said Mr. Littleton when he had finished reading the will. There was a good deal of surprise this for it had been supposed that in view of the admission of the Hummel affidavit the defense would surely call Evelyn Nesbit Thaw to testify at length regarding that disputed document.

Justice Dowling then addressed the jury briefly, saying that in view of the importance of the case he had ordered that it be taken at that point until the next morning, Wednesday, or such part of it as might be required, would be devoted to the defense for the purpose of summing up. Thursday was assigned to the prosecution for the same purpose. Justice Dowling said he would charge the jury as to the law either on Thursday evening or Friday morning, according to the state of the case.

"The case will be in your hands not later than Friday morning, gentlemen," he said.

BECKHAM AND BRADLEY EVEN.

Compromise in Kentucky Senatorial Contest May Give Seat to Allen.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 28.—Former Governor Beckham and W. O. Bradley, the Republican candidate, got 52 votes each in the balloting for United States Senator to-day.

John R. Allen of Lexington got 3 votes, Walter McNight and Lillard voting for him. Bradley got 2 and Blackburn and Baird one each.

It was apparent that Justice Dowling was not in favor of the trip to Blackwell's Island. Finally there was a compromise. Mr. Littleton said he would consent to the reading of the Hummel affidavit at the last trial if Mr. Jerome would consent to the admission of the will made by Thaw when he married Evelyn Nesbit. That was agreeable to Mr. Jerome, who began at once to read Hummel's testimony.

Taking up the record of the last trial Mr. Jerome read many of the questions put to Hummel and the answers he made. All the argument between Mr. Jerome and Mr. Delmas was cut out, Mr. Jerome referring to it as a "consequence." Hummel's testimony concerned the affidavit made by Evelyn Nesbit in his office after she returned from Europe after her trip with Thaw. Mr. Littleton has started at White and the cross-examination of Hummel by Mr. Delmas when the noon recess was taken.

THE AFFIDAVIT ADMITTED.

When court resumed after luncheon Mr. Jerome took the witness chair, but did not testify—merely to listen while Mr. Littleton finished reading the cross-examination of Abraham Hummel at the first trial by Mr. Delmas.

With that Mr. Jerome offered in evidence the carbon copy of the last page of the disputed affidavit and what the prosecution says is a photograph of the original page, which has disappeared. Mr. Littleton vigorously objected, on the ground that this evidence offered in rebuttal did not rebut anything hitherto testified to in this trial. But Justice Dowling overruled him and it went in.

This affidavit is dated March 27, 1903, three days after Evelyn Nesbit returned from Europe, where she had been traveling with Thaw. The contention of the defense is that she made it at White's instigation in order to give White a weapon with which to keep Thaw away from New York. Young Mrs. Thaw has always contended that she never made the affidavit against Thaw that is contained in it. She says she told Hummel that she and Thaw had been together in Europe, but that he wrote in a letter to her that she never said and which was not true.

The affidavit was made public in the course of the first trial. Its principal object was to show that Thaw was sane when he shot White, while the two were living at the Schloss Katzenstein in the Austrian Tyrol, broke into her room twice and beat her severely with a cowhide whip, forcing her bathrobe off the better to inflict the blows. This, the accusation runs, he did without the slightest provocation on her part. "He held up his revolver," said the affidavit says. Later, according to the affidavit, Evelyn Nesbit found a hypodermic syringe in Thaw's room in Paris and after she had examined it she became a cocaine fiend, even trying to get her to take the drug. The affidavit also states that Evelyn Nesbit and Harry Thaw were traveling as man and wife under the name of Delmas.

In the present trial Mr. Jerome asked young Mrs. Thaw if she had ever heard of the name of Delmas, and she said she had not. Furthermore, says the affidavit, Thaw tried to get Evelyn Nesbit to sign a paper which would make her a witness against him, but she refused to do so. Thaw then threatened to have her arrested and to have her committed to an asylum for the insane.

The affidavit also stated that Thaw had been traveling with Harry Thaw and Harry Thaw was traveling as man and wife under the name of Delmas.

POLICEMAN IN WITH CROOKS?

DAWKINS ACCUSED OF AIDING AND PROTECTING BURGARS.

Wasn't on His Beat When Another Policeman Caught Two Thieves There Red-Handed—Thieves Say Dawkins Planned the Robbery—Not the First Charge.

George Dawkins, a young, rather good looking policeman attached to the Adams street station in Brooklyn, was arraigned before Magistrate Dooley last evening charged with robbery. Capt. Max Steinbruck, who with Inspector John Flood worked up the case against the policeman, told the Magistrate that Dawkins had been standing in with crooks and pointing out stores for them to rob.

They got after Dawkins last Wednesday after Policeman Fred Wendeborg, on post near Myrtle avenue and Duffield street early Wednesday morning, had nailed a pair of burglars who had broken into the hardware-store of Schaffner Bros. and were trying to get away with a bag full of penknives, razors and other valuable articles that could be disposed of easily.

Wendeborg got him after a hard fight. He whistled and rapped for Dawkins, on whose post the burglary was committed, but Dawkins didn't show up. Wendeborg had gone off on his own beat to get the crooks. That circumstance, judge Steinbruck suspicious, because he knew Dawkins should have been on the spot and he placed the facts before the inspector. They did a lot of sleuthing, examining Dawkins's record among other things, and finally put the captured burglars, Scott Ryan and Harry Boyd, through a variation of the third degree. The men finally declared that Dawkins had put them up to the job of robbing the Schaffner store. They didn't see why the man who got them to do the job should get off free because he was a policeman.

Scott Ryan said he was pretty well acquainted with Dawkins and had helped the policeman shake down a drunk about a year ago in a saloon in Myrtle avenue. Capt. Steinbruck remembered that Dawkins had been arrested for the same business. Ryan said they got only $3 from the saloon and that Dawkins took $2 of the money as his share.

"Then he had the nerve to go to my house for breakfast," said Ryan, "and ate ham and eggs at my expense."

Ryan said that Dawkins went to him several days ago and said he needed money as he was in trouble with a girl and had got himself into a hole. He asked me to meet him on post Wednesday morning, and I showed up with Harry Boyd. He said it would be a cinch for us to break into some store and get away with some valuable stuff. He pointed out a place where we could get in without being seen. I went with him and I kicked on the job.

"What's the matter with this hardware store?" Dawkins said to Ryan, according to Ryan.

Dawkins helped them break the window open with a piece of rock, Ryan said, and was at the window when they came out with a bag of plunder.

"He shoved us back," said Ryan, "and told us to wait until he had beat it, otherwise he would have been in a bad way. We waited while he finally climbed up."

Wendeborg said then making their getaway and called on them to surrender. The pair showed fight and Wendeborg had to use his revolver to subdue them.

Capt. Steinbruck said last night that Dawkins was arrested a year ago charged with having held up and robbed a man named Farley, who testified that a policeman in uniform and another man had taken his money away from him.

Inspector Flood and Capt. Steinbruck placed the case against Dawkins in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Elder, who is conducting an investigation of his own. The District Attorney's office has had information that a cop was standing in with crooks and taking part of their loot.

Magistrate Dooley retained Dawkins to the custody of Capt. Steinbruck until this morning, when the policeman will be examined. Dawkins is about 30 years old, powerfully built and has been a driver, an amateur pugilist, a special officer and a bouncer at a Coney Island resort.

JEROME AND ROSALSKY.

Court's Opinion in Cravath Case Not Taken as an Instruction.

District Attorney Jerome when asked what steps he would take to do over the work which Judge Rosalsky declared in his opinion in the Cravath case had not been properly done before the November Grand Jury, said yesterday that he had received no order to do anything.

"Do you consider the opinion of Judge Rosalsky sufficient to lead to some action in the matter?" he was asked.

Judge Rosalsky's opinion," said Mr. Jerome, "isn't sufficient to make me do anything."

In deciding that Paul D. Cravath was not to be hauled off for refusing to testify before the November Grand Jury about his client Thomas F. Ryan's part in the Wall and Cortlandt street ferry railway purchase by the Metropolitan Police, Judge Rosalsky closed questions asked of Mr. Ryan before the Grand Jury and said that they were improper and of such a character that the validity of an indictment found after such an inquiry would be doubtful.

Mr. Jerome said that he had not yet had time to read the decision.

ANOTHER ITALIAN BANKERONE.

Sheriff Finds a Few Postage Stamps at Sabbia's in the Bowery.

Deputy Sheriff Altman is in charge of the place of business of Frank Sabbia, banker, ownership ticket broker and labor bureau, 23 Bowery, on an attachment for $900 in favor of Antonio Pansini, which was granted on the ground that Sabbia had departed from the city or was concealing himself. All that was found in the place to levy upon were two safes, four desks, a letter press, a few two cent postage stamps and twenty-five Italian postage stamps. A crowd besieged the place yesterday and the Sheriff got two policemen to keep order.

Sabbia has been in business several years and called his place the German-Italian exchange. He also went into real estate about a year ago, purchased two plots of land at Central Park, L. I., which he cut up into building lots sold on the installment plan. One of these places he called Helena Park.

Justice Dowling then addressed the jury briefly, saying that in view of the importance of the case he had ordered that it be taken at that point until the next morning, Wednesday, or such part of it as might be required, would be devoted to the defense for the purpose of summing up. Thursday was assigned to the prosecution for the same purpose. Justice Dowling said he would charge the jury as to the law either on Thursday evening or Friday morning, according to the state of the case.

"The case will be in your hands not later than Friday morning, gentlemen," he said.

BECKHAM AND BRADLEY EVEN.

Compromise in Kentucky Senatorial Contest May Give Seat to Allen.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 28.—Former Governor Beckham and W. O. Bradley, the Republican candidate, got 52 votes each in the balloting for United States Senator to-day.

John R. Allen of Lexington got 3 votes, Walter McNight and Lillard voting for him. Bradley got 2 and Blackburn and Baird one each.

It was apparent that Justice Dowling was not in favor of the trip to Blackwell's Island. Finally there was a compromise. Mr. Littleton said he would consent to the reading of the Hummel affidavit at the last trial if Mr. Jerome would consent to the admission of the will made by Thaw when he married Evelyn Nesbit. That was agreeable to Mr. Jerome, who began at once to read Hummel's testimony.

Taking up the record of the last trial Mr. Jerome read many of the questions put to Hummel and the answers he made. All the argument between Mr. Jerome and Mr. Delmas was cut out, Mr. Jerome referring to it as a "consequence." Hummel's testimony concerned the affidavit made by Evelyn Nesbit in his office after she returned from Europe after her trip with Thaw. Mr. Littleton has started at White and the cross-examination of Hummel by Mr. Delmas when the noon recess was taken.

W. L. DOUGLAS

$3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

I make and sell more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, and wear longer than any other $3.50 shoe.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOE CANNOT BE QUARANTINED AT ANY PRICE.

W. L. Douglas Boys Shoes $1.75 & $2.00

CAUTION: W. L. Douglas shoes are made in Brockton, Mass., and are sold by dealers everywhere. Beware of cheap imitations.
